

Research
Databases

via PREL

Need To Do Research?

Pacific Resources for Education and Learning (PREL) offers free online access to important research tools!

Access to both EBSCO databases and the Stat!Ref collection of full-text medical resources is available to all teachers, students, parents, educational administrators, health professionals, and researchers in the U.S.-affiliated Pacific.

EBSCO

EBSCO databases index more than 11,000 of the world's leading magazines and journals in every subject area, including education, health, social issues, business, technology, news, and general interest.

Stat!Ref

Stat!Ref provides access to approximately 75 reference books. This collection includes the most current medical and drug information for doctors, nurses, librarians, medical students, and researchers.

Connecting to EBSCO and Stat!Ref

Visit www.prel.org and click on Login under "Need to do research?" from any computer at home, work, or school. Contact your local PREL Service Center or askprel@prel.org to obtain a password.

